Difference between the "Charcoal Grill" and the "Leskovac Charcoal Grill"

The difference between the mentioned grills lies only in the type of grid:

The "Charcoal Grill" has a grid made of bright drawn round rods with a diameter of 6 mm.

The "Leskovac Charcoal Grill" has a grid made of square rods with dimensions of 8 x 8 mm.

In both cases, the spacing between the rods is 8 mm.

Both grids are almost without visible differences. The only minor differences are:

- When grilling fish, the bright drawn steel grid (Charcoal Grill) performs better because food sticks less.
- The Leskovac grid made of 8x8 mm rods (Leskovac Charcoal Grill) performs better when grilling steaks.

The listed prices do not include VAT!
